ABSTRACT

The curriculum unit was used in a two-week pilot program on leisure industries. The class met five periods per week for forty minutes per period. Behavioral objectives specify that students will be able: (1) to define leisure, vacation, rest, relaxation, avocation, secondary career, service industry, and leisure or recreation industry; (2) to describe the transition from goods to service industries that will occur in America; and (3) to outline a career or avocation for themselves based on what the class can explore and their own interests. A chart format is used to list suggested content questions, teaching techniques, and learning activities, resources and materials, and teachers' own materials. A list of materials, visual aids, and speakers for the unit includes publications, filmstrips, posters, films, and speakers from the Geneva, Ohio, area who spoke on various community services. A log of daily lesson plan activities for the two-week period is included, along with a bibliography of book, films, and filmstrips. (SD)

The test class includes 37 freshmen students most of whom are boys of average or above ability. The class was briefed during the previous week.

MONDAY - Introduction: The students will receive dittoed Sample Job Description to look through. As they are skimming the pages I will explain the purposes for the study. From this list each student will choose two possible careers.

TUESDAY: The class will choose the most appropriate speakers and visual aides. Some students will speak to people on an individual basis. Time to read magazines and newspapers.

WEDNESDAY: Each student will prepare a bibliography in the library or class using the Reader's Guide or career education materials on his two subjects.

THURSDAY: Values Clarification Work is the objective of this activity. "One man's work is another man's pleasure."

1. Students will discuss and then briefly write on this statement.

FRIDAY: Students will use "Search" magazines to find articles or pictures on service industries or leisure time. Materials collected will be used to make a bulletin board display. Supply of scissors and tape necessary.

MONDAY: Role Playing

THURSDAY: Speaker - Mr. Porter will speak on skiing as a business and leisure time activity.

FRIDAY - Review and evaluation session.

Conclusion: Jobs to be most rewarding should be varied with planned leisure. Future jobs will be increasing in service or leisure industry.
